The VORA, a new product to pacify urban spaces with a double function of street furniture and play element for children.

Designed by the Elisava school, Benito has created a new product aimed at pacifying public spaces. The first VORA has been installed at the exit of the Estel school in Barcelona and has been very well received by children and adults alike. Originally conceived as a temporary element, it has now become a permanent fixture.

It is not a game, nor a slide, nor a swing, but it can be used for playing, jumping, hiding... It allows for a playful use of the city while also separating buildings from the main street.
