

The new playground located in the middle of the Passeig del Ter in Manlleu is a thematic space designed around the legend of the Serpent, which is one of the main cultural attractions of the city.

The playground in Manlleu, designed by BENITO, provides children with a unique environment that combines fun and learning, immersing them in the local history and culture. Located in a prominent location in the city, this park has become a landmark for families and visitors looking to explore the rich cultural heritage of Manlleu.

With a special design inspired by the local legend that takes place during the main festival on August 14th, the playground aims to become a timeless attraction for the city. The play elements reference this legend, with a large multi-game installation shaped like a serpent, swings, a sand area, a rocker, and two symbolic playhouses. Additionally, the park features a panel that recounts the story of the Serpent, allowing visitors to learn more about the legend.

BENITO has been responsible for the comprehensive design of the park, creating a unique serpent-shaped structure that not only offers fun for children but also provides a green and recreational space for residents and visitors. This holistic approach has allowed the playground to become a point of interest for both the local community and tourists seeking to experience the authentic culture of Manlleu.

The playground not only offers entertainment for the little ones but also serves as an educational tool, allowing children to learn about local history and culture in an interactive and enjoyable way. By combining play elements with references to the local legend, the playground promotes knowledge and appreciation for the cultural heritage of Manlleu, creating an enriching experience for its visitors.
